EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

We analyzed 14.9K clicks across three campaigns.

- Key findings:
- Partner #2 has the highest landing-page conversion: 15.07%.
- Partner #1 desktop has positive short-term profit, but slightly negative projected 6-month ROI: -1.49%.
- Partner #1 mobile and Partner #2 have positive projected 6-month ROI: +71.40% and +46.95%.

Main conclusion:

Keep Partner #1 mobile and Partner #2, but optimize their acquisition costs. Optimize or stop Partner #1 desktop unless conversion or traffic cost improves.

TRAFFIC & FUNNEL

Click → Registration

Campaign	Clicks	Registrations	Conversion
Partner #1 Desktop	3,467	353	10.18%
Partner #1 Mobile	4,020	333	8.28%
Partner #2	7,479	1,127	15.07%

Partner #2 converts traffic into registrations best.

The dataset does not include ad creatives, placements or landing-page variants, so the exact reason for the conversion gap cannot be confirmed. The next step is to test traffic quality and landing-page fit by campaign and device.

ECONOMICS

Short-term vs. 6-month economics

Campaign	Weekly ROI	6-M ROI
Partner #1 Desktop	+10.84%	-1.49%
Partner #1 Mobile	-21.12%	+71.40%
Partner #2	-82.52%	+46.95%

The key insight is that short-term affiliate economics and projected customer lifetime value tell different stories. Partner #1 mobile and Partner #2 lose money on the initial traffic economics, but projected 6-month user revenue makes them profitable.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Partner #2

- Keep the campaign because projected 6-month ROI is positive.
- Reduce CPC and remove low-quality placements.
- Current CPC is $0.23; immediate affiliate economics would require a much lower acquisition cost.
- Scale only after traffic quality and long-term ROI remain positive.

OVERALL: optimize acquisition cost and conversion
rather than scaling traffic purely on click volume.

Partner #1 Desktop

- Test desktop landing-page variants.
- Increase registration conversion from 10.18% toward ~10.35%, or reduce CPM from $6.40 toward ~$6.30.
- If performance does not improve, stop the campaign.

Partner #1 Mobile

- Test a mobile-first landing page and simplify the registration flow.
- Reduce CPM toward ~$1.85 or improve lead conversion.
- Continue monitoring 6-month ROI.
